PROCEDURES

There are numerous models of policy review processes. ELAA has modified the Bridgman and Davis (2000) policy cycle for implementation by early childhood education and care services. This policy cycle consists of eight stages, as shown in the diagram below.

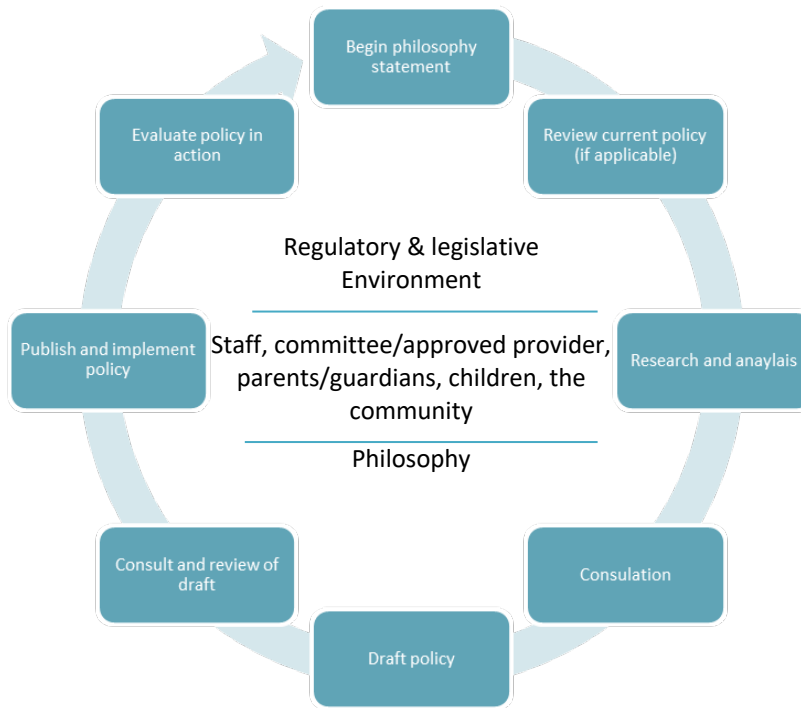

Diagram one

BACKGROUND AND LEGISLATION

BACKGROUND

Efficient and effective policies and procedures are an essential part of a service's operation. They ensure compliance with laws and regulations, provide a road map for the day-to-day operations and set standards of behaviour, conduct and performance. When followed, the service can run smoothly, and any risks can be identified in a timely manner. Policies and procedures reduce liability risk and promote a safe and healthy environment for all users of the service.

The Education and Care Service National Regulations, 2011 states that the approved provider of an education and care service must ensure that the service has policies and procedures in place as set out in Regulation 168 (2).

While the National Regulations and the National Quality Standards (NQS) do not specify how often the review of policies and procedures should occur, policies should be reviewed regularly to meet the changing needs of the service and continued compliance with legislation.

As a general rule, every policy should be reviewed regularly (every one to three years), when legislative changes occur, and if there's a change of processes or when an incident occurs that may also impact on the policy review process. Policies can be prioritised for review according to how often the content is expected to change. Policies should be up to date with current research and contemporary views on evidence-based practice, and support a shared understanding of a service's practices, purpose and philosophy.

LEGISLATION AND STANDARDS

Relevant legislation and standards include but are not limited to:

- Education and Care Services National Law Act 2010
- Education and Care Services National Regulations 2011
- National Quality Standard, 2020
